The kingdom cannot be detached either from Christ or from the Church. Therefore, if that which until now has been a matter of debate concerning the highest essence has been established on the basis of due reasoning, then the foundation of one's certainty is not shaken in the least if the intellect cannot penetrate it in a way that allows clear formulation. He then reaffirms this sentiment for the case of moral theology: "In order to fulfil its mission, moral theology must turn to a philosophical ethics which looks to the truth of the good, to an ethics which is neither subjectivist nor utilitarian. And it is within the realm defined by these points of reference that reason operates. Also, the encyclical re-states that the Magisterium of the Church has authority to pronounce definitively on moral issues. Hence the need for a preliminary clarification.
